Excerpt: . played that I never doubted it was hope you meant to express. So I do not doubt I did; for the multitude was full of hope, vain hope, to lay hold upon the truth. And you, being full of the main expression, and in sympathy with it, did not heed the undertones of disappointment, or the sighs of those who turned their backs on the chase. Just so it is in life. I am no musician, I returned, to give you a musical counter to your picture. But I see a grave man tilling the ground in peace, and the form of Truth standing behind him, and folding her wings closer and closer over and around him as he works on at his day s labor. Very pretty, said Mr. Stoddart, and said no more. Suppose, I went on, that a person knows that he has not laid hold on the truth, is that sufficient ground for his making any farther assertion than that he has not found it ? No. But if he has tried hard and has not found any thing that he can say is true, he can not help thinking that most likely there is no such thing. Suppose, I said, that nobody has found the truth, is that sufficient ground for saying that nobody ever will find it? or that there is no such thing as truth to be found? Are the ages so nearly done that no...
