Excerpt: .having an effective piston area, after deducting the area of the rifle bar, of 6 square inches; weight of piston and drill steel, 50 pounds. The friction of the pipe and passages, throttling by the valve and back pressure from the exhaust, together with the following of the steam of air pressure for three-quarters of the stroke, will reduce the mean pressure to 40 pounds. Then by the formulas as given for the steam or air hammer, the energy of the blow will be the total mean pressure on the piston multiplied by the stroke in fraction of a foot, plus the stroke multiplied by the weight, or 6 square inches X 40 pounds X fi + X 50 pounds = 120.83 foot-pounds. Then if the drill penetrate the rock of an inch at each 12 stroke the theoretical effect of percussion will be--or 96 X 120.83 = 11.699 pounds, or nearly 6 tons static pressure. A large allowance from the theoretical effect must be made for the actual effect, by the assumed value of the friction of the drill steel on the sides of the hole, and other moving parts, as well as for the resisting effect of water and debris of drilling, which always more or less clog the drill hole. The average running time of drills on open rock work is about five hours per day, and the average of 250 strokes per minute or 75,000 strokes per day is probably a...
