Concerning the age of the formation, he says: It is manifestly newer than the fossiliferous Miocene on which it rests, and older than the Columbia formation by which it is overlain. He states his belief that at least a part of the Orange sand of Hilgard in Mississippi is equivalent to the Appomattox formation. In this as well as in later papers he refers extensive areas of surficial deposits in North Carolina to this formation which in the present report are classed as Pleistocene terrace deposits. In 1890 McGee² described somewhat more fully the distribution and character of the deposits in North Carolina which he included in his Appomattox formation. In June, 1891, a conference was held in San Francisco, which was participated in by Hilgard, Le Conte, Loughridge, and McGee, with the object in view of deciding upon an appropriate name...
